OLD AGE ASSISTANCE PAYMENTS INCREASE

Both the total payments for Old Age Assistance and the number of recipients continued to mount in November, according to the statistical summary of the Health and Welfare Department issued today. At the same time, the application rate continued to increase, showing a 65% increase over the corresponding five month period in 1948. The number of cases added to the OAA rolls for the first five months of the fiscal year showed an increase of 46% over the same period in the previous fiscal year. The average payment per case was 25% higher than for November of last year.

Old Age Assistance payments for the month of November were $16,656.00, an increase of 36% over November of 1948. The average grant has increased $9.82 per month in a year's period of time. Commissioner David H. Stevens said that an analysis of cases recently approved for payment indicated an increased number of persons making application because unemployment benefits had been exhausted. In addition, there was an increase in the number of persons who have lost employment through lay-offs and discharges. The fact that some relatives, legally responsible for the support of their aged parents, were now out of work or that their earnings had been materially decreased was another factor that resulted in the increased OAA costs, the Commissioner added. He also pointed out that Maine's population group of age 65 and over continued to be one of the three largest in the United States.

PUBLICITY BUREAU HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING ON JAN. 16

An extensive revision of the By-Laws of the Maine Publicity Bureau will be submitted to the membership at the annual meeting in Portland on Monday, January 16, according to notices mailed out this week. Nearly all changes are designed to provide wider representation on the Board of Directors and Advisory Committee to conform with the expanded membership obtained during the past year's Boost Maine Campaign.

As recommended by the Board of Directors, the present board would be enlarged to three directors from each county, instead of one as at present, in addition to not more than 25 directors at large. The present limitation of the State-wide Advisory Committee to 100 members also would be removed. An innovation is provision for creation of County Panels, composed of Directors and Advisory Committee members in each county for better liaison between the Bureau and the members in the respective counties. These panels could be convened at any time at the call of the Board of Directors, the President, the Board chairman or the panel chairman.

Provision for holding the annual meeting in Portland, fixed at the time of the founding of the Bureau in 1922, would henceforth be decided each year by the Board of Directors, to allow the Annual Meeting to be held at other places within the State.

Guy P. Butler, Secretary of the Corporation and Executive Manager of the Bureau, said the By-Laws Revision was the most extensive since the last revision in 1940.

MUST HAVE APPROVAL FOR PAYMENT HOME MEDICAL CARE IN SERVICE DISABILITY

Dr. Lorimer Schmidt, chief, outpatient division, Veterans Administration Center, Togus, Maine, reminded service-connected disabled veterans seeking home-town medical care that approval must first be obtained from the VA Center, Togus, or VA Office, Portland, if they expect the Veterans Administration to pay the bill for such treatment.

"An increasing number of claims for reimbursement have come to the VA Board of Appeals from Veterans who failed to obtain VA approval before receiving treatment from their home-town doctors," Dr. Schmidt explained. "Except for those cases where it was found that emergency treatment for a service-connected disability had been necessary, the claims have been disallowed."

Approval cannot be given on either emergency or non-emergency requests for home-town medical care if a VA hospital or out-patient clinic is feasibly available, according to Dr. Schmidt. Neither is home town medical care available to non-service-connected cases under the law.

Plea for Action

One reason why there is apt to be a battle in the coming Congress over taxes and government spending is that things have come to the place where everyone expects somebody else to do something about it. You see, everybody favors economy for the other person, or the other bureau. But nobody does anything much about it. America needs action, in this respect. I am hoping that every public servant, will take his cue and do exactly what everybody else expects of him: economize!

Such action on the part of Washington bureaucrats would be so out of the ordinary that it would result in reams of publicity for anyone willing to try it. Very likely, too, it would endear any bureaucrat to the public mind so much that his political fortunes would be made from that time on. I would like to see such a movement for eliminating waste and extravagance catch fire and get somewhere.

Crusty at the Top

But this big, growing formation of crust at the top knows well how to protect itself and whatever it holds within. Our biggest monopoly, "big government," is trying hard to keep in power and to withstand the advocates of economy. Big government is well-equipped to resist any effort to economize, particularly if it means lopping off personnel and offices. Each bureau is free to devote all the time and attention it wants to "keeping on."

When called upon for information or to testify before Congressional committees, these bureaucrats are always ready to present pleas for more money. But nobody has heard them make any real offers to economize. As for revealing their story to the public, the all-to-common attitude is that what the public doesn't know, and what the Congress doesn't know, won't hurt anybody. It would be real news indeed, if some bureau should offer to cut its budget for next year.

Political Spenders

Perhaps that is why our Senator, John McClellan has just suggested an accounting agency that would keep up with the doings of big government and report to the Congress in an unbiased manner on budgets and spending. That agency would cost money, itself. But the Senator's idea is that it would soon pay for itself - and more. How else asks the Senator, can Congress get information it can use in making intelligent appropriations?

Resistance to economy in government is terrific. Each and every bureau has its pet plans, and hardly a spending project in Washington is not somebody's pet. For either a bureaucrat or a Congressman to lose his responsibility around with the idea that all government spending is "just political" is simply to ignore realities and get in the usual Washington rut. We need men in government that are real public servants, not political spenders.

A Public Duty

It is obvious that not a single recommendation of the Hoover Committee could ever go into effect, as political spenders rule. Nor will any more of its recommendations be used unless we have public servants willing to do what the people want done. The American people have a right to expect these politically chosen men, elected or appointed, to be real public servants. This includes practicing economy at all times, where the people's money is concerned.

This has not been the case in the past. Extravagance has been the rule of the day. We are now at the point where federal and local taxes consume more than 30

Don't Copy Others

DO YOU COPY someone else in your work? If you do, you will meet with only the success of a copyist, although you may be copying subconsciously. Nothing pays off like originality. Don't take this to mean wild-cat schemes, crazy ideas with an attempt to be different, but worthwhile, helpful, sound measures or ideas that have not been used before.

Hy Landerer, of the Brandt theatres, New York City, tells a story of being surprised by his supervisor one day with, "Mr. Landerer, starting next week you will be permanent master of ceremonies at this theater." He says if he had been hit over the head with a bat he couldn't have been more stunned.

In a panicky frame of mind, he asked himself what to do. Should he imitate his predecessor in telling jokes and passing wisecracks to his audience? Yes, that was it. That was the answer. So he went out and purchased a joke book.

Honesty forced him to admit that telling jokes was not a natural talent with him; that truly good performers knew how to fit their jokes to the occasion; that a joke had to be spontaneous or it would appear mechanical, and would not be in the least funny.

Every morning he practiced on himself, and every evening after the theater had closed. He recited poetry to himself, read the Gettysburg address, tried to master the art of speaking before a microphone. But there was still the problem of what to say before an audience.

Then one day he ran into an old friend, a master hand, that well known comedian, Milton Berle, who said, "Hy, there are not two people who can tell a joke the same way and get the same result. Just remember that in your position, your patrons are coming to see the artists you introduce. So go on the stage, tell some interesting fact about the performer, announce his name clearly, and get off. Never attempt to imitate anybody; be yourself."

"That evening," says Hy, "I did just that, and I have met with success far greater than I had anticipated. Throughout the years I have carried that advice with me, and it has stood me in good stead always."

THIS WEEK IN Washington

APPARENTLY with President Truman's blessing, Secretary of Commerce Charles D. Sawyer has given the country, as far as business is concerned, a new and refreshing understanding of what the administration stands for in the economic picture.

In a recent New York speech, Secretary Sawyer, in outlining "the new liberalism," cut through some of the distortions which have been propagated by opposition to the administration and declared that what the administration seeks is a balance between economic groups based on "open-mindedness, flexibility and a constant reference to facts."

Sawyer, a businessman himself, has constantly sought to relax the hostility which has recently characterized the position of business toward the Truman administration. And he declares that "understanding, not hostility" is the keynote to coordinate the government's efforts toward monopoly and the restraint of trade.

Sawyer said that the only radical idea in the world was the idea of modest profits in an ever-expanding market. And that is exactly and only what this administration is asking of business . . . to forget the greedy profit motive . . . to forget about assessing the consuming public on the amount they think the traffic will bear.

He said that strict attention to facts, not propaganda, stresses the government's responsibility to provide statistics based on straight thinking. He made direct observation to the United Mine Workers pension fund in emphasizing that any pension fund not actuarially sound is a fraud and declared that upon this basis the unequal abilities of large and small business to pay pensions point to more, rather than less, government participation.

Secretary Sawyer went further to declare that "the best safeguard against the growth of communism is the growth of our economy and the participation of all our people in the benefits of our increasing power to produce."

LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

For folks who have not yet got around to their New Year's resolution and to do my first "good turn" for the new year—I have a suggestion. If it catches on to some percent of our national income, Experts say that when a nation is taxed more than 25 per cent of its national income, disaster is ahead. The duty of economy lies heavily on every man in government. He must uphold economy as a principle, not just favor it for some other reason.

Reports from Wisconsin lend credence to the story that David Lilienthal resigned as chairman of the atomic energy commission to run for the senate from Wisconsin. In this connection, the Milwaukee Journal warns Republicans that they stand a chance of losing control of the state. Says the Journal:

"When the Democratic party can throw a shindig in the Milwaukee auditorium in an off-election year, attract 1700 persons from around the state and raise nearly $50,000 for a political fund, things have changed in Wisconsin. Wisconsin Democrats probably haven't had $50,000 of their own for campaign purposes since the time of Gov. George Peck, more than half a century ago."

"And when Democrats can boast of active party organizations in 44 counties, and now ones coming to life almost weekly, a new political day is dawning. All this has happened since 1946 when Bob LaFollette folded the Progressive party and tried to 'go home' to the Republicans, who promptly shut the door in his face. Young progressives, mostly war veterans, refused to follow LaFollette. They moved into the Democratic party and were warmly received by the younger Democrats of the New Deal persuasion."

Together these forces began to fashion the new Democratic party on the basis of a coalition of labor, farmer and liberal in the model of the Franklin Roosevelt vehicle. Their success last fall in helping to carry the state for Harry Truman, in electing an attorney general, two congressmen and a number of legislators, was eye opening."

There is a story going the rounds in Washington that Ohio Democrats have given up hope of carrying that state against Sen. Robert A. Taft. When the Democratic chief vote-getter, Gov. Frank J. Lausche, refused to run against Taft, and Murray Lincoln, head of the Ohio farm bureau federation, while not putting himself out of the running, refused to announce, the wind was taken out of the sails of the Taft opposition.

considerable extent and the good citizens of our fair land live up to their resolve for 12 months, then I will feel pretty skookum about our U. S. A. getting over its phony notion that you can have permanent prosperity via big spending of borrowed money.

Dishing out 100 million bucks of Govt. cash for any reason—or no reason at all—makes times good for the guys getting same. That is a cinch—no debate, so far. But the folks that divvy to the income tax man—this same 100 million—good times for them are around the corner—a far corner a mirage like you sometimes see on the Mojave Desert.

SLOGANS

IN THIS AGE of decadence—and that's what it is—the brain is seldom used by about a third of the population when it is deciding the nation's fate and that of their children in the voting booth. The emotions pull the lever for enough voters to swing our once proud nation constantly backward toward the days of feudalism, or statism—"government of the many by the few."

The slogan employed to cover this reactionary trend is "Liberalism." Its adherents call themselves "Progressives" (They are progressing all right—progressing backwards!)

In order to totally hoodwink that third of the population which in its semi-blindness swings the vote ever away from the "freedom of the individual," the "Liberal" leaders invent impressive slogans to undermine the really liberal and progressive third of the population. They label these sincere Americans "Reactionaries" and "Fascists."

Now that one-third of America which tries to use its mind when it votes is, as a rule, more conservative in action and in speech where the interests of its country are concerned. They are usually of a type too earnest to indulge as freely in slang and slogan as are the "Liberal-with-other-people's-money" and the "Progressives—backwards."

They don't seem to realize that the word SLOGAN has become the most important word in the dictionary. No only here but all over the world. Hitler might never have won out in Germany without his slogans; the Red slogan ran like fire through the excited Russians in 1917 and thereafter; "Fascism" stirred the emotions of the Italians to a frenzy, and "New Deal" had more to do with the election and re-election of F. D. R. than we realize.

Now we have a couple of new babies—little "fair deal" and baby "welfare state." How about labeling them "last deal" and "farewell state?"

Why don't those who wish to stop the advance toward statism roll up their sleeves, let down their hair, forget their reserve, and break down a few slogans of their own?

NEW SENATOR . . . Harry Darnley, Republican national committeeman from Kansas, was named, U. S. senator from that state to serve unexpired term of late Sen. Clyde McCreary.

A balanced diet of nutritious food builds strong, healthy bodies which are well fortified to fight the ever-present menace of tuberculosis. Voluntary tuberculosis associations, which are supported by the annual sale of Christmas Seals, sponsor health education programs in our schools.

THE STARS

By LYN CONNELLY

NOW THEY'RE PAYING radio and screen stars NOT to appear on television! Gene Autry, CBS cowboy star, receives $500 per week from his radio sponsor to stay away from video cameras. . . . The sponsor feels TV is not yet ripe for the star and is giving him additional compensation to make up for what he might be losing by not going on. . . . Greta Garbo, who, over the years, has steadfastly refused to appear on radio for the paltry sum of $25,000, is said to be thinking of a one-shot video appearance provided no audience is present. . . . "Hollywood Calling" may not be cancelled out after all.

FLATTER CHATTER
COLUMBIA: "Carle Meets the Masters" is a work of art condensed into several waxed discs. . . . The album has Frankie Carle playing selections by Chopin, Tchaikovsky, Mozart, Schubert, Grieg and Beethoven. . . . This is really a fine album, one well worth having. . . . Recommendations are made for Alex Stordahl's "I Wanna Go Home With You" backed by "Foolish Tears". . . . Dinah Shore's latest is the very cute "Bibbidi Bobbidi Boo". . . . She combines it nicely with "Happy Times".

VICTOR: Vaughn Monroe has a potential hit in "So This Is Love," coupled with "There's No One Here But Me". . . . Perry Como also appears on the scene with "Bibbidi Bobbidi Boo" and has a sprightly arrangement of it. . . . Whether you like male or female vocals will probably determine the selling between the Como and Shore efforts. . . . Phil Harris does a nice job on that new favorite "The Old Master Painter" with "St. James Infirmary" on the back. . . . Mindy Carson's latest is the light "Too Whitt! Too Whitt!"

CAPITOL: If you're a western addict, Capitol has two good answers for you. . . . One is by Hank Thompson in the nature of "Give a Little, Take a Little". . . . "A Cat Has Nine Lives" is on the flip.

The prettier a patient looks, the better she feels—and that's true whether she's sixteen or sixty. If you have a bed-ridden convalescent in your care, include a few pampering procedures in her daily routine. It will pep up her spirits. . . . Daily hair care is advisable. For the woman whose scalp is tender, try a child's soft-type brush. Occasionally, for an especially effective hair cleansing, saturate cheesecloth with witch hazel and draw it down over the hair; brush the brush in the usual way, renewing the cheesecloth as it becomes soiled. . . . A daily sponge bath is refreshing, too. After the patient has been patted dry, and the bath session with a soothing baby lotion rub. Use this fragrant white emulsion all over the body, with special attention to heels, elbows and back where pressure is likely to cause bedsores. Herodials are using this homogenized mixture of pure bland oil and water with lanolin and an antiseptic to help lessen the possibility of such lesions. . . . The home nurse can also help by cutting circles and rest pads out of foam rubber. These may be wound with clean surgical gauze which can be replaced as it gets soiled. These "doughnuts," as home nurses call them, relieve pressure at various points. . . . In cleaning the teeth, wind a tongue depressor with surgical gauze moistened with a mouthwash and brush the tongue, as that's often the focal point for unpleasant fuzziness. . . . Light, air, sun and pleasant surroundings make illness easier to bear, too. Often the patient's room may be brightened with interesting things to watch—a bowl of goldfish, a bird-feeding station outside a window, some growing plants. All these are stimulating diversions for one who's ill.

SUCCESSFUL PARENTHOOD

By
Mrs. CATHERINE CONRAD EDWARDS
Associate Editor,
Parents Magazine

MOTHERS who have to stumble over extra toys in the weeks following Christmas are probably asking themselves, "Who ever started this Santa Claus business?" Which brings us to a favorite topic: how to teach children to put away their playthings. . . . The basic plan for the teaching is simple, but it takes persistence and ingenuity to put it into effect. . . . We'll restate the theory and then give you some examples of how other mothers have carried it out. First, you must provide time for picking up toys by giving ample warning of the end of the play period. Second, putting away the things the child has been playing with should, from babyhood, be taught as part of the game. . . . Too often parents make cleaning up appear to be a penalty rather than a natural part of play. We've used before the illustration of children sliding downhill on their sleds. They may not enjoy the upward climb after each thrilling shoot down the icy path, but they accept it uncomplainingly as part of the game. . . . One of the best examples of applying this principle to playroom straightening was told by a mother who had almost despaired of getting her five-year-old daughter back to put her toys away neatly. Then the mother thought of appealing to the child's recently awakened interest in "playing house". . . . The father built open bookshelves for one wall of Emily's room and encircled them in pale blue. Then the mother showed Emily how to arrange her toys on the shelves in interesting and colorful groups. Just as she herself had odd bits of china and glass placed attractively on corner cupboards. At first the mother helped, but after a week or so Emily took over alone. Now all the mother has to do is admire her daughter's arrangements and discuss color and balance with her. Emily is absorbing some of the fundamentals of decorating, as well as learning that putting toys away can be as much fun as hauling them out. . . . Another mother, who is particularly clever about allowing for the time element, tells us that she watches to see when her children's interest begins to lag in the toys they are using. Then she suggests that they put those away and get out something different. . . . If it is near mealtime or going outdoors time she suggests something simple—a doll or toy animal which will be easy to put back or can be carried outdoors. We have her word for it that she hasn't picked up a toy since this plan was put into effect a month ago. . . . Finally, there's the very practical suggestion of homemade trucks for toys, each marked with a picture of the toy. It is to hold one for blocks, one for mechanical toys, one for crayons and cutouts, etc. These trucks can be made from wooden fruit boxes. Reinforce each end with a strip of wood and put a furniture caster in each corner. Better sandpaper the box inside and out to remove splinters, then paint each a different color. Keep in mind sand show to voice and manner that children generally love to pile things in a toy truck. And don't wait until they are too tired before you suggest that it's truck loading time. . . . Yes, the theory really works if you use your imagination in applying it!

Nobody's Business

This is a good week to take time more seriously. Too many of us feel that we have no time for things which we know should be done, and which nobody but ourselves can do. This seems to apply especially to our duties as citizens. Many of us seem to be considered "good citizens" merely because we are honest and mind our business, even though through the years we dodge successfully nearly every basic duty expected of an American citizen. It is not enough that we render full service to employers, feed and clothe our families, and behave ourselves generally as we should.

If the American way of living is to continue much longer, we, the average citizens, must arouse ourselves. Too long apparently we have felt that the duties of self-government are the other fellows' job. It was too easy to lie back, stay away from town meetings, state and national elections. True, most of us can see what is wrong and know very well how to fix everything, but the gentlemen in charge seldom hear from us and give little heed to our counsel.

In your resolutions which become effective next week why not do something about it? In your 24 hours a day, next year, take the duties and privileges of citizenship more seriously. Take time to go to town meeting and consider the town's problems which require your vote. Choose and support able candidates for all offices at every opportunity. Study the affairs of the day so that you can decide wisely when the times comes to indicate our decisions and choices.

Varied bits of rubbish have come to adorn the highway leading from the village to the Corporation dump. In some cases this is entirely accidental but often it is avoidable and certainly could be cleaned up on the return trip of those using the dump. This is an appeal and suggestion that greater care be used in loading trucks and trailers. The Songo road has been an attractive approach to Bethel village and there is no good reason why it should be spoiled.

How Dumb Can We Get?

by DeWitt Emery

(EDITOR'S NOTE: DeWitt Emery is president of the National Small Business Men's Association.)

The American Institute of Public Opinion recently reported that one of the chief "areas of ignorance" among the American people is their failure to realize the high portion of the personal incomes which are taken by hidden taxes. Former President Herbert Hoover, in his 75th Birthday Address, spelled out for the American people their grossly excessive tax burden in a way no one could possibly misunderstand. He put it this way, "Out of the 235 working days in the year the average American works 61 days to pay his taxes."

Stop for a minute and figure out what this means to you. Multiply your daily wage or salary by sixty-one and that's what the government is taking out of your pocket as your share of the taxes it collects each year. If you make ten dollars a day your tax bills is over fifty dollars per month. Keep that in mind the next time you hear an office-holder telling all the things he has done for the American people.

Mr Hoover also pointed out in his birthday speech that there are enough new spending programs under consideration by the Federal Government to take at least twenty more days' pay a year away from every employed person in the nation.

The fact that you cannot see the amount of tax you pay every time you make a purchase does not mean that you are not being taxed. In fact, because the bulk of your taxes are well concealed—hidden—is what enables the tax-spenders to get away with throwing your money to the four winds all over the world.

The Illinois Federation of Retail Associations reported to its members that there are 126 hidden taxes in a pair of shoes, 78 hidden taxes in a quart of milk, 154 hidden taxes in a cake of soap, 63 hidden taxes in millady's coat and 47 in her dress, 201 in a gallon of gasoline, 142 in the farmer's plow, 53 in your hat, 148 in a pair of overalls, etc., on throughout a long list.

Yet, in the face of this excessive taxation our Federal Government is operating in the red. In the three months ending September 30, the deficit was $1,211,440,000. These were three mighty prosperous months with tax receipts of $9,237,648,000 representing a near-record peacetime tax collection, being an increase of some $113,819,000 over the corresponding boom quarter of the preceding year. So the deficit was not caused by a falling off in revenue but rather by a new mad wave of bureaucratic spending.

Where did all this extra spending money go? The largest single item of increased spending went to crop supports which jumped in the quarter ending September 30, from $75,272,000 last year, to $816,198,000 this year. This is the amount added to your food bill for three months in addition to the high price you paid for the food itself. Maybe Federal spending and high taxes don't mean anything to you personally; then again maybe they do.

One thing you can be sure of is that these back-breaking taxes and this grossly excessive spending will go on just as long as the "dumb taxpayers" will pay the bill. Every politician likes patronage, and the more there is to spend the more patronage there is to dish out. That's the way it is, and that's the way it will be until the American people start yelling at the top of their lungs for economy. Then when there are more votes to be gotten by economy than by big spending the expenditures will melt away

REV. ROBERT H. HARPER

The Continuing Band of Disciples
Lesson for January 1, 1950: Acts 1: 1-14

Memory Selection: Acts 1: 8

THE FIRST QUARTER we study the early church, with lessons from the Acts and the Epistles. A passage of Acts is found in all the 13 lesson texts of the quarter. The Book of Acts was written through careful research by one who was a companion of Paul and who had some contact with other apostles. Luke, a physician, was the author, and the only Gentile among the writers of the New Testament. His Gospel records the ministry of Jesus, the Acts the ministry of the Holy Ghost.

Jesus employed the 40 days following his resurrection in talking with the disciples about the Gospel and the work of the kingdom. Some questions of the disciples were not answered, but definite was the promise of power (Acts 1: 7, 8). The promise of power was the gift of the Holy Ghost (Acts 1: 5).

After the ascension, the disciples went into the upper room, to continue steadfastly in prayer, a fit employment for those who were soon to form the Christian church and to turn the "world upside down."

This is a good lesson for New Year's Day. The expectation of better things in 1950, under the presence of the Holy Ghost, and with continuing prayer to that end, should be the attitude of God's people as they face a new year of opportunity and service. Let us make this day a holy day of consecration to the work of the kingdom of God.

like a snowball in that well-known hot place.

It's just that simple, Mr and Mrs America. If you want lower prices and want to spend more of your own money for clothes, furniture, better food, better housing, etc., start yelling and keep it up. It's your government and you have it in your power to have good or bad, wasteful or economical government. It's yours to choose.

I repeat, "How dumb can we get?"
